Yesterday the American Heart Association was at WMS to kick off the AHA Kids Heart Challenge!

The Kids Heart Challenge is a nationwide program that aims to raise awareness about heart health and raise funds for research and educational initiatives to prevent heart disease in children. Your children will learn the importance of heart health, physical activity healthy eating, and how to do hands-only CPR. This challenge also helps to raise funds for heart disease and research programs and to support families affected by congenital heart defects. We encourage all families to have their children sign up at heart.org/schools and to watch the videos the AHA has available on the site to learn about heart health and hands-only CPR. Knowledge is power and in an emergency early intervention is crucial. Learn the skills today and you may be able to save a life!
